We Need to Take More Pride in Local Industries

LOOKING FORWARD: During the past couple of weeks the idea of a "grass roots" operation to improve our area economically has been snowballing, or mushrooming, or whatever you want to call it.

The idea, of which you'll be hearing more from time to time, is designed to get everybody in on the act of working to get industry into southern Illinois. Into Harrisburg or Eldorado or Carrier Mills or Galatia or wherever they want to go.

Before we can tell this movement, maybe some changes in attitudes would be a good thing. Not everybody's attitude, but the attitudes of some.

What I'm getting at is this: There are too many attitudes of (1) defeatism, of (2) disinterest and (3) belittling.

Let's talk chiefly about No. 3. Let us begin by saying we have a lot of fine things in our area that come in for belittling by more than a few and probably less than a large number.

We'll take up a number of examples and I hope that they are accepted in the light in which I intend them to be.

How about our small industries here, like our bakeries, our dairies, our packing plants and brick kilns? They put out as good products as you'll find, but you'll find lots of people who must have the brand that's imported. I don't know why. And sometimes you hear disparaging remarks that you for the life of me I cannot understand. They just don't add up.

How about developing a pride in our local industries. Be proud of them and be thankful they are giving employment to the guys and gals who live around the corner.

We can keep going into other fields. You hear a smart crack about the local radio station. Did you ever look into the programming? I'd like to know just how many listeners the Baptist Hour has. The number is gigantic. I know. The station puts on a sports program during the year which is second to none, broadcasting all the St. Louis Cardinal baseball games and all of the University of Illinois basketball games. You can't beat that.

And the local television station. Man oh man, when I hear a deprecating remark here I wonder if the person talking knows of all sweat and thought and money that has been put out to give Harrisburg the ONLY television station in Illinois south of Decatur. Many stations in similar circumstances—in smaller towns far away from the network cables—have folded but not the local station. It is a growing asset to our community and I'm certain the grass will not start growing under anybody's feet down there. It will continue to get bigger and better.

And now The Daily Register. Of course, we have our shortcomings—but we're not nearly as lousy as some people whose attitudes need changing would have you believe.

Stratton Says He Has 'Never Favored' Contribution Funds by State Employees

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. William G. Stratton said Thursday he has "never favored" state employee salary contribution funds such as the one in Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter's office.

Stratton was asked at a news conference if he thought the 2 per cent contributions of salary by employees, such as funds used by Carpenter to defray official expenses, were proper. Stratton, who announced after being elected governor he would collect no such funds, said:

"I can only speak for my own policy and I have never favored it. Every officer has to make that decision for himself. There is a great variation of this type of fund."

Stratton said a "citizens finance committee" under Charles Percy of Chicago would be "greatly depended on" to raise the Stratton campaign fund. He said he thought his record in office would attract "various people over the state" to make a "broad record of contributions."

Stratton was also asked about

Survivors are Amazed at No More Casualties

Embassy Express
Leaves Rails at
80 Miles an Hour

SEVERN, Md. — Survivors of a crack passenger train derailment said today it was "unbelievable" there were not more casualties when the New York bound train jumped its rails here Thursday killing five and injuring 90 others.

One man said he missed death by "one car and one minute."

Another said it was only his fondness for cigars that saved him and his wife. Many others said it was a miracle they were alive.

The Pennsylvania railroad's 14-car Embassy Express left the rails as it was rolling at 80 miles an hour across a straight stretch of track on a marshy flatland Thursday night.

It was 21 minutes out of Washington and moving on a tight schedule toward New York when the air brakes locked suddenly and nine of the 14 cars bounded out of control.

Five persons died and 90 were injured in the pileup that followed. Several of the injured were not expected to live. One of those injured less seriously was former Sen. Herbert R. O'Connor (D-Md) who suffered a cut on the head.

Swerved to Right

The dining car swerved to the right as it left the tracks, slammed head-on into a steel pole supporting overhead electric wires.

There was a blinding flash of light as the high tension wires dropped.

The rear of the diner slid down a 15-foot embankment and yanked three cars behind it.

The violent derailment of the dining car pulled two cars forward of it off the rails. They tipped onto their sides. Three cars in the rear jumped the track too.

Allen Johnson, Washington, said he left the wrecked dining car only a minute before the wreck.

"I missed possible death by one car and one minute," he said. He was in one of the cars which left the tracks but remained upright. Johnson and many of the other 400 passengers on the train said the calm that settled over the wreck scene immediately after the smashup was amazing.

No One Panicked

"There was dead silence in our car," Johnson said. "No one ever panicked."

Michael Berov, who was in his yard at the time of the wreck, said the calm following the wreck was amazing.

"There was a little colored boy with his legs cut off and he wasn't even crying," he said.

Another passenger said he saw one man "wandering around with his arm torn off."

The screams and moans were pathetic, he said.

John Paul Smothers Nominated for Postmaster at Marion

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has submitted the name of John Paul Smothers to the Senate for confirmation as postmaster at Marion, Ill.

The charge of State Treasurer Warren E. Wright, Stratton's primary opponent for governor, that Stratton had opposed a deserved salary raise for state employees during the 1955 legislative session.

"I think this administration has been pretty decent to everyone," Stratton said. "This is the first administration in a long time that hasn't assessed employees 2 per cent of their salaries. . . . We have instituted a 40-hour work week at 25 state institutions. . . . Respect of the civil service laws for employees is the greatest it's ever been under any administration. . . . and I think the new Department of Personnel will have some recommendations about salaries next session."

Arraign 90 Negro Leaders In Alabama

Plead Not Guilty
To Violating
Anti-Boycott Law

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Ninety Negro leaders were quietly arraigned today on charges of violating the state's anti-boycott law while many members of their race walked to work and school in a protest demonstration.

The Negroes paraded in groups before Judge Eugene W. Carter. All pleaded "not guilty" with the exception of one man who said, "I haven't done a thing."

"You plead not guilty then," Solicitor William Thetford suggested.

The Negroes were indicted for a citywide boycott of the Montgomery bus line, which began when a Negro woman was arrested for refusing to observe regulations governing the seating of white and Negro passengers of the buses.

26 Ministers Indicted

The defendants will be tried in group of 11 cases. Thetford said the cases had been set for trial in Circuit Court the week of March 19.

Negro ministers, 26 of whom were among those indicted, proclaimed this "Prayer-Pilgrimage" Day and asked all "race-loving Negroes" not to drive their cars or ride other vehicles during the day.

Morning reports indicated the "pilgrimage" was only a partial success. A light drizzle that fell in the early hours might have been partly responsible.

Reporters who drove through Negro areas of the city noted a larger number than usual of Negroes walking, but the sight of a Negro in a car was not a rarity.

"Not a single race-loving Negro will start his car or ride a car," the Rev. R. D. Abernathy told a throng he estimated at 5,000, which jammed his First Baptist Church Thursday night on the eve of "prayer-pilgrimage" day.

"And you know nobody will ride the buses," he added. "The big church, filled from balconies to the basement, thundered with applause. Women shrieked. Men moaned. Others shouted, 'Hallelulah!'"

Pulaski Tavern Owner Slain

Three-State
Alarm Spread
For Two Men

OLMSTED, Ill. — A three-state alarm was spread today for two men, one of whom shot and killed a Pulaski County tavern-keeper Thursday night.

Clate Adams, 57, was wounded three times in the shooting in his tavern south of here. Sheriff Robert Aldrich said the two men may have been attempting a hold-up although no money was taken from the tavern.

The gunman also fired his .45 caliber automatic pistol twice at Adams' wife, Rosie, as she telephoned the sheriff for help but missed her.

First reports were that Adams was shot once but examination of the body today revealed wounds in the stomach, upper chest and in the back. The gunman shot Adams in the back as the tavern owner fled to the floor after firing one shot from his own revolver at the gunman without hitting him.

The two men escaped in what is believed to be a 1955 model car with Michigan license plates.

Police in Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky have been alerted to watch for the pair.

At Belleville, police officer Raymond Butzinger recalled seeing the two men in Mac's, an all-night restaurant almost an hour before a teletype message came through with their description from Pulaski County.

Witnesses Tell Of Closed Mines, Idle Workers

PMW Attorney
Tells of Conditions
In Saline County

BENLD, Ill. — A dozen witnesses representing labor, business, civic and school interests today appeared to ask for federal aid for this economically depressed mining area.

U. S. Sen. Paul H. Douglas held a Senate Labor subcommittee hearing to "find out the facts" on whether his bill to benefit economically depressed areas is necessary.

The witnesses who appeared told a story of closed coal mines, failure of many unemployed miners to find new jobs, movement of other unemployed from the community, low property values and accompanying civic decay.

James F. Cannon, Gillespie, executive director of the Benld-Gillespie Development Assn., said the people have tried to help themselves, but have met only limited success in attracting new industry and in finding jobs 50 to 100 miles from home.

Make Some Recommendations

He said coal mines in this area once employed 20,000 men, but this employment has dwindled to a few hundred.

Cannon said two of the largest industrial plants were closed at the end of the Korean War and a half-dozen plants secured by the efforts of 14 community promotion organizations only employ about 250 persons.

He said 65 per cent of the labor force works outside the area, the men driving up to 100 miles to work and returning to their homes each day. Cannon said assessment property valuations are down 10 to 15 per cent since 1950 and this has meant losses to property owners, school districts and other local governments.

He said relief rolls have increased 79 per cent since 1952.

Cannon and Richard H. Long, vice president of the Gillespie Peoples State Bank, recommended the government provide backing for water supplies—which have frustrated some industrial location efforts; highway improvement to aid commerce; improvement of school facilities; construction of sewer systems for smaller communities; efforts to locate a proposed federal prison; to locate a U. S. Navy airfield here and to relieve congestion at St. Louis Lambert Field; and place defense contracts to revive some closed plants.

Many Mines Closed

J. E. Wenzel, attorney for the Progressive Miners of America, Gillespie, said most PMW mines in the union's territory of Saline, Macoupin and Montgomery counties have been closed since the end of World War II.

He said only about 600 of the more than 3,700 miners employed in Saline county in 1946 still have jobs. He told of the closing of

Rainfall Here Totals .33 Inch

Showers last night brought .33 inch of rainfall to Harrisburg up to 7 a. m. today.

This was not enough to start the creeks rising as yet. Pumping from Middle Fork into the reservoirs has ended although there is still plenty of water in the creek.

Amos Doom, water and sewer department superintendent, explained that the water, practically at a standstill because of the high Ohio river, has become too hard and contains too much acid content for pumping into the water supply.

Pumping ceased at 3 p. m. Tuesday with the north reservoir full and four additional feet of water in the south reservoir.

Lake Harrisburg has been full for several days.

Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness than he that is perverse in his ways though he be rich. — Prov. 28:6.

Missile Situation Complex

Editorial By Bruce Blossatt

In the past few weeks charges have grown stronger that the United States is lagging behind the Soviet Union in the all-important race to produce an intercontinental guided missile.

The complaints cannot be dismissed lightly, since they are being voiced mainly by two able and responsible senators, Henry Jackson of Washington and Stuart Symington of Missouri.

President Eisenhower has in fact acknowledged that America may trail Russia in some phases of its missile program, while it leads in others. Evidently the requirements of security prevent his being more specific than this.

The President's statement plus the Jackson-Symington charges seemed to lend especial pertinence to the recent resignation of Trevor Gardner, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force in charge of research and development.

But later accounts do not support the notion that Gardner quit in protest against slowness of the guided missile program. Indications are that he acted because the Pentagon refused to approve an added 200 million dollars for research and development. Yet he did not plan to spend any of that extra money on the disputed guided missile program.

Gardner evidently did not like some features of the program, but he did not speak out against the general pace of it.

Inquiry discloses that the missile work has been in controversy not only on the outside but within the administration. The argument is between the Air Force, which wants to concentrate on long-range missiles (5000 miles) and the Army and Navy, which are primarily interested in the 1500-mile weapon.

At least temporarily, this argument has been quieted by giving equal priority to the two types. This satisfied Army-Navy advocates, but left Air Force supporters still discontent. From this situation plus their own appraisals of Russian progress, Senators Symington and Jackson apparently compiled the material that led to their charges.

To show that the issue is complex and not always quite what it appears to the naked eye is not to minimize these charges. President Eisenhower has not done so, nor should anyone.

When the stakes may be free world survival, as well they could be, we can only welcome responsible criticism. For this is a program we cannot afford to be wrong about. It is a race in which we dare not run second.

Our Crowded Airplanes

It was a wise move when Mr. Eisenhower named a new special assistant to plan the nation's future aviation facilities. Such planning constitutes one of the country's really critical needs.

Even as viewed today, the status of commercial and other aviation is not good. The crowding of the lanes over airports is attested by the fact that every day there are four near-collisions of major commercial aircraft, mostly in clear weather.

Airports are not only overcrowded from the standpoint of physical facilities. Most have outmoded electronic equipment to assist in the control of landings and take-offs.

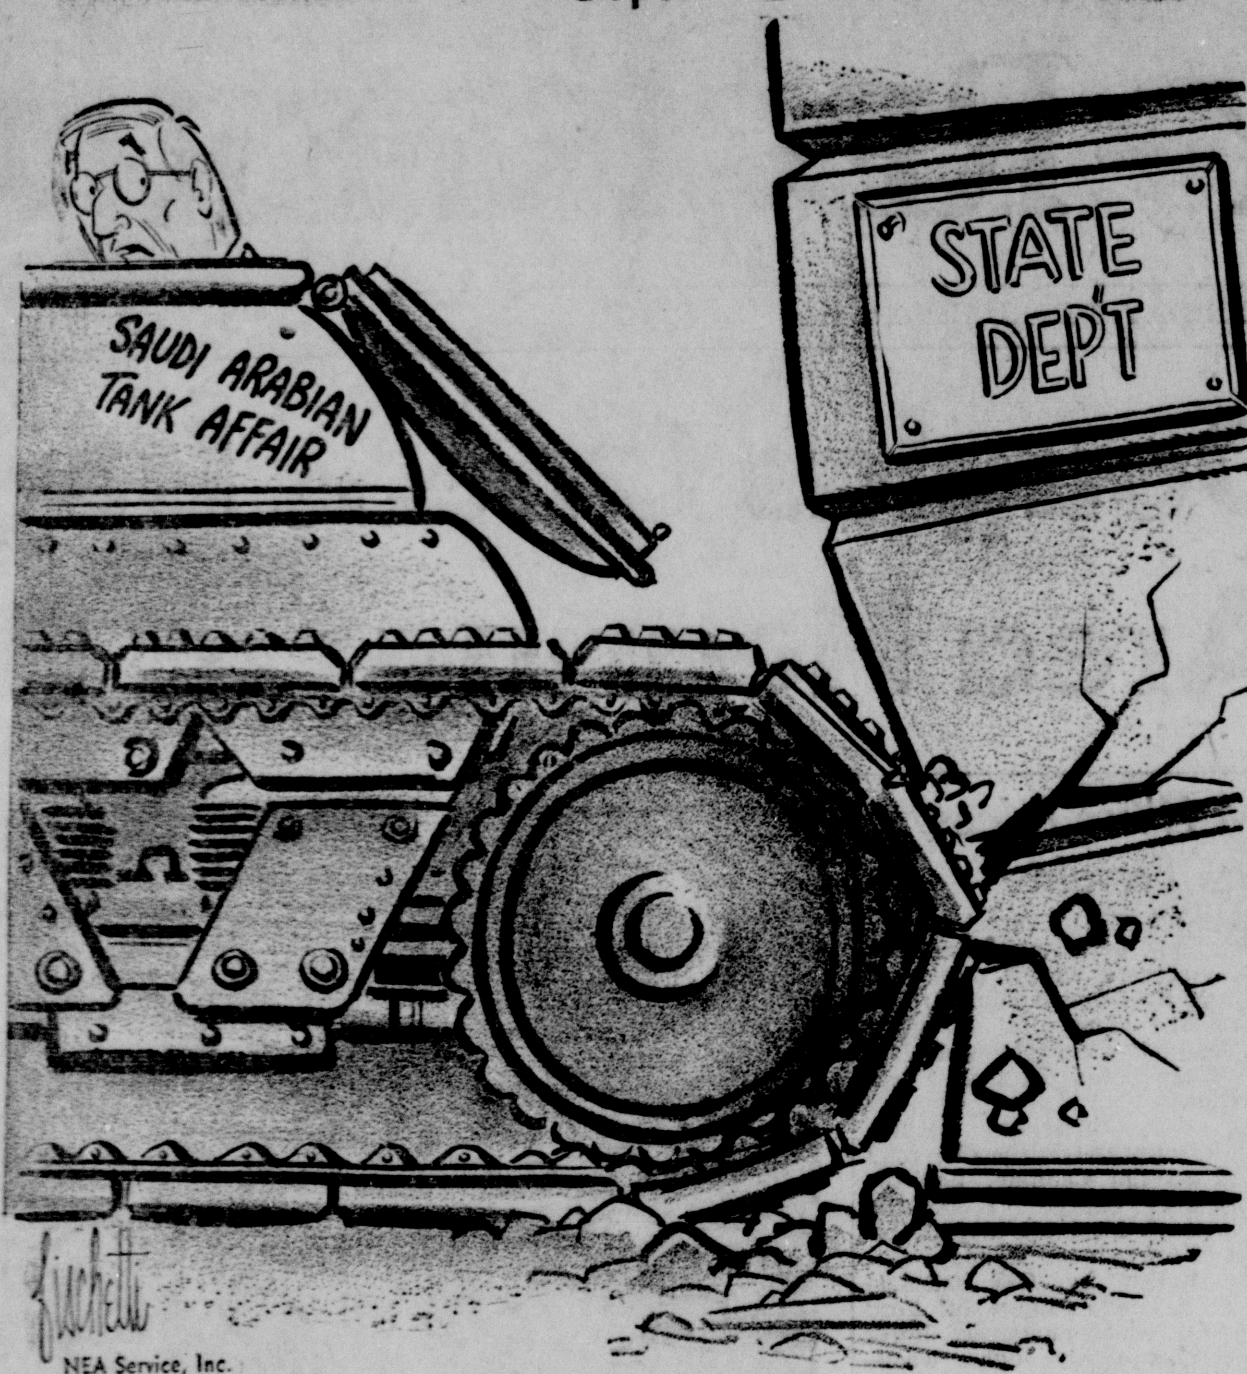

And the regulations which govern flying not only at fields but along the far-flung air lanes are badly in need of modernizing to fit today's planes.

Very one of these problems will be vastly magnified when the commercial jet age is ushered in a little more than three years. The call is for planning on the widest, most imaginative level possible.

REVIVAL CLOSERS

The revival meeting at the Shawneetown Social Brethren church closed Wednesday night. There were 24 conversions. The Rev. John Henshaw, evangelist, and Mrs. Groves, pastor, wish to thank the people in the vicinity of Harrisburg for being with them and helping out.

Dulles Will Visit India Under Adverse Conditions

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles goes to India in March with half a dozen foul ball strikes called against him.

Coming on the heels of the Bulgarian-Khrushchev propaganda victory tour of South Asia, the Dulles mission may be something of an anticlimax. The Indians might throw an all-out welcome for President Eisenhower. The reception given Dulles may be somewhat less spectacular.

It is an open secret that India's Prime Minister Nehru has no great love for him. The strain is said to go back to a slight which Dulles gave Nehru while negotiating the Japanese peace treaty. In one of those strange piques of pride, hurt feelings and Oriental superiority complex which westerners can't understand, India didn't attend the peace conference.

Then in 1953 when the U. S. opposed India's participation in the Korean cease-fire talks — because India hadn't been in the war — Nehru called Dulles' policy "immature," for two reasons.

FIRST, NEHRU THOUGHT neutrals might bring the two opponents together. Second, he thought Asians should have a voice in settling Asian problems — not non-Asians.

As it worked out, India was the neutral power that handled prisoner exchange after the Korean armistice.

Dulles has been in South Asia three times since he became secretary of state, but in India only once. This was with Harold Stassen in May, 1953, to talk foreign aid.

Vice-President Richard M. Nixon followed this up in November on his good will, round-the-world mission for President Eisenhower. Nixon wasn't too well received, either.

In September, 1954, Dulles went to Manila where he signed the SEATO pact, creating the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. India did not attend and has not joined the alliance, since Nehru opposes all such military pacts.

Dulles went to the SEATO conference in Bangkok a year ago. Afterwards he visited Burma to assure Premier U Nu that SEATO offered no threat to his neutrality. The job of reassuring Nehru on this score was left to Anthony Eden.

DULLES CAPPED his own unpopularity in India when he made his unfortunate Goa statement about having discussed Portuguese "provinces" in the Far East during the Washington visit of For-jugal's Foreign Minister Cunha in December.

This being the situation, about the only thing Dulles and Nehru can talk about to improve their relations will be American participation in India's current five-year industrialization plan.

Up through last June 30, U. S. aid to India has amounted to 528 million dollars. This includes a wheat loan of 190 million dollars and other loans of 100 million. This year's budget is for 60 million aid, including 10 million in Point Four technical assistance.

NEARLY EVERYONE who goes to India seems to come back convinced that the country is free but independent, neutral but nationalistic, socialistic but democratic and anti-Communist, badly in need of economic help if it is to be kept out of the Soviet orbit — and almost impossible to understand.

President Truman's Ambassador Chester Bowles made friends with Nehru. But the two-billion-dollar long-range aid program which Bowles mapped out, Congress refused to consider.

Eisenhower administration estimates of what's needed vary between 75 million dollars a year for three years to 250 million dollars a year for five years.

Because of Nehru's unwillingness to play better ball and the fog in understanding, the chances of large-scale aid seem dim.

Any change in the existing situation which Dulles can bring about should be an improvement. The present state of strained relations couldn't be worse.

Revival begins Sunday at Carrier Mills. A revival will begin Sunday night, Feb. 26, at the Church of God on North Main street in Carrier Mills and continue through March 11. Services begin each evening at 7.

The evangelist is Rev. Johnny Warren of Hickory, N. C. He is only 19 years of age and has been preaching since the age of 15. The public is invited to come and hear him preach the old time gospel.

There will be special singing and music by the church. Rev. Cordell Ellis is pastor.

Cost of Living Drops Slightly

WASHINGTON — The cost of living dropped slightly in January, the government reported today.

The drop means a 1-cent-an-hour cut in pay for about one million automobile and farm equipment workers whose wages are pegged to a cost of living scale. Their pay cut will take effect in the first pay period in March.

The slight January decline brought the cost of living to the lowest point since August.

Lower prices for food, household furnishings, clothing and automobiles accounted for the decline.

The consumer price index declined .1 of 1 per cent between mid-December and mid-January to 114.6 per cent of the average 1947-49 prices. This was .3 of 1 per cent higher than a year ago.

The peak level of the index was 115.4 per cent of the base period in October, 1953.

Federal Road Tax Plan Passes First Hurdle

By United Press
Backers of the Democratic plan to tax motorists and trucks to help pay for a national highway-building program conceded today the plan is a long way from becoming law.

The program cleared its first roadblock Thursday when the tax-boosting features were tentatively approved by the House Ways & Means Committee. The group wrote into the plan iron-clad assurances that the new tax money would be used for nothing but highways.

Motorists and railroads are fighting the plan. They contend it favors trucks.

The plan would raise about 13 billion dollars in new revenue over the next 16 years to pay for 13 years of expanded road building. It would provide an additional tax of one cent a gallon gasoline, diesel fuel and special motor fuels and three cents a pound on tires and tread.

In addition, the legislation would boost from eight to 10 per cent the excise tax on the manufacturers' price for trucks, buses and truck-trailers. Passenger cars already are taxed 10 per cent.

The taxes would go into effect July 1.

Twin Girls Stricken With Leukemia

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Two-year-old leukemia-stricken twin girls, one of them in critical condition, lay side-by-side in a hospital today in what a doctor called a "once-in-a-million" medical rarity.

The girls are Eileen Sue van Lopik, who was expected to die "at any moment," and her sister, Kathleen Jo, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John van Lopik.

A pediatrician attending the identical twins said the case was "extremely rare." The doctor, who asked not to be identified, said it was the first time since 1929 that the disease was known to have struck two members of the same family.

"The chances are a million-to-one against it," he said.

mines at Wason, Muddy, Eldorado and Harrisburg, and said unemployment in Saline county totals 15 per cent of the labor force.

He said in Macoupin county 10 mines were working five years ago but now only 3 mines operate and none of them are strong operations. He said some of the 5,600 miners who lost their jobs in Macoupin county mine closings since World War II have found new employment in the St. Louis and Springfield area and 950 of them past age 62 have gone on PMW pension rolls.

Emery H. Martin, Gillispie high school superintendent, in answer to a question by Douglas about job opportunities for high school graduates, said "most of them leave our community."

Douglas' bill would provide loans for location of private industry, assistance to communities for public facilities, financing for building of plants and increases in job training and unemployment compensation programs.

In opening the depressed economic conditions hearings here, Douglas was serving on a Senate subcommittee assigned to investigate such conditions. He was joined by another senator in these hearings.

The subcommittee schedule called for another hearing this afternoon at Litchfield, hearings at Johnston City and Carbondale Saturday; Rosiclare and Mounds Monday; scheduled for West Virginia and other states later.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of our husband and father, Jesse J. Lee, who passed away one year ago today, Feb. 24.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still;
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.

God in His wisdom has recalled;
The boon His love has given,
And though the body slumbers here,
His soul is safe in Heaven.

Herrin Tigers Are Only Two Victories From South Seven Championship

By BOB ULLRICH
United Press Sports Writer
HERRIN, Ill. (UP) — Leodio Cabutti's Herrin Tigers are just a whisker away from their first South Seven Conference basketball title.
"If we beat both Benton and Centralia this weekend," the 30-year-old coach said, "we have the championship. One win and we get at least a tie for the title."
Talking with Cabutti quickly reveals his pride in this Tiger team, ranked third in the United Press ratings of Illinois prep teams. The first team lineup:
Ivan Jefferson: Junior forward, 6 foot 3 inch, 170 pounds, shooting at a .535 clip, has hit 314 points to average 13.1 per game through Feb. 18.
Charles Hamilton: Senior forward, 6 foot 1 1/2 inch, 190 with 160, has scored 185 points for an 8.4 game average.

Next Year's Nucleus
John Tidwell: Junior guard, 6 foot 3 inch, 160 pounds, has a shooting percentage of .450 and leads the team in points with 353, an average of 14 per game.
Ted Green: Senior center who stands 6 foot 6 inch and weighs 205 pounds, has 190 rebounds to lead the team in that department and has scored 254 points in 43 games.
Richard Jones: Senior guard, 5 foot 9 inch, 145 pounds, the "good little man" better known to the fans as "Tchey." He has "only" 252 points but the ball handler who sets up Herrin's plays.
The first line reserves are Ron Gray, Jim McPherson, and Steve Heard. Five of the eight varsity members will be lost through graduation and Cabutti counts on Jefferson, Tidwell and Heard to be next year's nucleus.
Cabutti, a native of Johnston City and a graduate of Southern Illinois University, is in his eighth year of coaching here, five as head basketball coach and seven as top football coach.

His Tourney Foes
After this weekend his boys face the Marion regional and Pinckneyville sectional tournaments. He is concerned about the Pinckneyville tourney where his Tigers may meet Merrill Thomas' Pinckneyville Panthers if both win their regional tests.
And what if Herrin gets past the sectional and super-sectional trials?
Well, the Tigers went to the state finals twice—finishing fourth in 1919 and second in 1940.
The school's trophy case is crowded with lesser statuettes and loving cups, but room could quickly be made for the symbol of state basketball supremacy.

Syracuse Beats Ft. Wayne, 94-92

By United Press
Use of a long-standing "jinx" enabled the Syracuse Nationals to open a 1-12 game lead over the New York Knickerbockers today in their battle for a playoff berth in the National Basketball Assn.
In the only game played in the league Thursday night, the Nationals came from behind in the closing minutes to beat the Fort Wayne Pistons, 94-92. It was the seventh straight win for the Nationals and their 23rd straight over the Pistons on a Syracuse court.
Paul Seymour led the Nats with 23 points while Larry Foust paced Fort Wayne with 19. The Nats, defending league champions are in third place in the Eastern Division, the Knickerbockers fourth.

He had a 7-1-1 season at Murphysboro, losing only to Harrisburg.

Wes Santee Victim of System IN THE Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — Two conclusions seem fairly obvious today in the wake of the permanent suspension of miler Wes Santee.
The first is that the Kansas runner took more in expenses than the amateur law allows. The second is that Santee, doing no more than many others, is a sacrificial offering to the AAU's own guilty conscience.

Santee's mistake was in taking a check instead of cash.
You may debate all day that Santee was no more guilty than many others and that his payoff was rather trivial, being only $1,500 in 22 meets. But you can't avoid the fact that he did accept excessive payments beyond what the AAU law allows.
The fact that everybody else on the whole is wrong does not make Santee right. Possibly you can feel there is some basis to the charge that somebody is out to "get" him. As the biggest name in track and field he was exceptionally vulnerable. Had the AAU made an "example" out of, let's say, somebody in the mile walk, nobody would have paid any particular notice.

Bad Rap Not Charged
Santee never came out and said that he was being tagged with a bad rap. His attorney, to whom I talked several times, never insisted that Wes was completely innocent.

The major demand was that the case be sent back to Santee's home Missouri Valley Assn.

They had cleared him once of these same charges. The 21 to 7 vote indicates that even there some of those sitting in judgment weren't completely certain that he hadn't been "on the take" to a certain extent. But Santee's counsel, shooting to have the case sent back for another home state decision, knew it was the only manner in which he could win.

It is ridiculous to insist that being barred as a "professional" would have any bad after effects on the Santee name. Nobody ever thought that such previously disgraced athletes as Jim Thorpe, Paavo Nurmi and Gunder Haag should be in prison because they made a little above expenses and thus were barred from amateur ranks.

Slim Expense Accounts
The onus is, and should be, on the AAU and on its niggardly, profit-making system which doesn't allow comfortable expense accounts to the men who "make" its track meets.

Colleges have an out on their pinch-penny methods on the theory that their contests are part of the collegiate athletic system. But men such as Santee and other headliners are no collegians being paid off in part with an education. Santee is a Marine lieutenant. Horach Ashenfelter is an FBI man. Bob Richards is a teacher. And so it goes.

When they give up personal time for training and take long periods away from their families and work to compete in meets which are strictly money-makers for the organizations putting them on they should be allowed a fair return. True, they aren't professionals. But their expense accounts should be equitable and comfortable.

Actually, this is accepted even by the AAU. But their method is one of under-the-table. Santee's big mistake was in taking a check instead of demanding cash as the rest do. He was, in the end, a victim of the system.

Multi-grade motor oils introduced recently have advantages when air temperature changes greatly in a short time.

Lar Daily Asks Name Be Removed from Ballot in Primary

CHICAGO (AP) — Lar (America First) Daily said today he has asked that his name be removed from the ballot in the April 11 Illinois Republican presidential preference primary.

Daily said he had asked Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter to take his name off the ballot, even though the official deadline for withdrawing of names is passed.

"I do not want to be considered as 'anti-Eisenhower' by having my name on the ballot against his," Daily said.

Convicted Illinois Communist Leader to Surrender

NEW YORK (AP) — A convicted Communist leader who has been a fugitive for almost five years announced in a special delivery letter today that he will surrender next Monday noon at the federal courthouse here.

Gilbert Green, chairman of the Communist Party in Illinois, was convicted with 10 other top U. S. Communist leaders in 1949. With 3 others, he failed to appear to begin serving his sentence in the summer of 1951.

They had been sentenced—in the first of a series of trials on similar Smith Act charges—for conspiracy to teach or advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

The neatly typed announcement of surrender was signed "Gil Green." It was mailed in New York to the United Press and bore no return address.

In it Green said he had completed a book which would serve as "my own political brief before the highest court in the land—the court of public opinion" and was being sent to a publisher "before the steel doors of political bigotry clang shut behind me."

Senate Leaders Seek Realistic Limits On Campaign Spending

By United Press
Senate leaders of both parties joined today in shaping legislation to put "realistic" limits on political campaign spending. The proposal also would require that all campaign contributions be made public under a "very stringent" reporting system, grant a tax exemption up to $100 on political contributions and permit radio-TV networks to split free air time between "major" party candidates.

Administration Changes Farm Program to Attract Corn Growers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration has quietly revised its new farm program to make it more attractive to corn-hog farmers in the politically important Midwest.

As it applies to corn producers, the program now advocated by the administration differs in important ways from the one President Eisenhower proposed in his Jan. 9 farm message to Congress.

It also is different from the corn program included in the farm bill now under debate in the Senate. But private negotiations are afoot in the Senate for a compromise that would bring the Senate bill closer to the new administration ideas.

Would Take Corn Off List

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson believes that if the revised program is adopted by Congress, it will insure higher market prices for corn next fall than either the administration's flexible price support program or the rigid high price supports sought by the congressional farm bloc.

The revised Benson plan—which was offered to, and rejected by, the Senate Agriculture Committee shortly before it sent the catch-all farm bill to the Senate floor—would take corn out of the list of "basic" commodities guaranteed price support.

But it would give corn producers special price support treatment this year and special benefits under the "soil bank" to make up for this.

The plan calls for adoption of both of two proposals which Mr. Eisenhower suggested only as "alternatives" in his farm message and includes soil bank benefits at which he only hinted.

How It Would Work

Under the revised program:

1. All commercial corn farmers would be eligible for the already-announced support price averaging $1.40 a bushel on the 1956 crop, regardless of how much corn they plant. The rigid support bill under debate in the Senate would assure corn farmers $1.64 a bushel, but only for farmers who plant within their allotments.

The allotment restriction is important because so many farmers overplanted their allotments for the 1955 crop that only 40 per cent of the corn produced in the Midwest was eligible for price support. As a result, market prices at harvest-time last fall fell about 40 cents a bushel below the support price of $1.58 a bushel.

2. Corn farmers would get "soil bank" payments on land taken out of corn this year even where the reduction would still leave their plantings in excess of the 1956-crop acreage allotments. The reduction would be measured from their base acreage—which is higher than 1955 planting allotments and 30 per cent higher than 1956-crop allotments.

About Town And Country

And I'll say one thing, after looking 'em all over: I'll put up the old Register against any of the rest in southern Illinois. Go over to some of the other cities of comparable size, pick up a newspaper and compare it with the home town paper. Go ahead, do it.

Right in the Harrisburg trading area we have the best stores you'll find. I mean it. Look at our furniture stores, our clothing stores, our department stores, our grocery stores. You won't find any better anywhere. And yet we have people who've just gotta go someplace else when it comes to buying something. They won't even go down and look at what we have to offer. They've gotta jump in the car and go somewhere else.

All the merchants ask is that you give them a chance. At least go in and see what they have to offer.

There are lots of attitudes that are of poor taste and probably thoughtless. Start boosting some of the things you've been belittling and you'll be in a better position to become a valuable blade in any grass roots operation that comes along.

Confession Shows Killing of Cub Scout Without Rhyme, Reason

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)—Officials said today the confession of a 14-year-old twin in the bludgeoning of Cub Scout David Powell showed the killing was without "rhyme or reason."

Ohio County Prosecutor Joseph A. Gompers said the confession of Tommy Williams indicated there was "no apparent motive" for the crime.

"I have no idea why he did it," Gompers said. "There was no rhyme or reason for it."

The Powell boy was killed Feb. 9 while canvassing neighbors near his Wheeling Island home to sell tickets to a Cub Scout benefit show. His body was found the next day beneath a porch of the Williams home. The victim's head had been split from front to rear and his throat and chest bore stab wounds.

Doctor Says Ike May Be Better Heart Risk Now

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower's doctor said today the chief executive might be a better heart risk than someone who never has suffered a heart attack, although there is "no guarantee" against another attack.

Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the White House physician, discussed the President's condition with reporters as Mr. Eisenhower, with Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, started out on a full day of quail hunting in the piney woods of south Georgia.

Presumably, Mr. Eisenhower has also spent much of his time here arriving at his big decision—whether he will announce to the nation that he will seek a second term or retire to his Gettysburg farm.

Snyder said he had "no impression at all" whether his patient would seek a second term.

But as to whether Mr. Eisenhower was physically unable to run, Snyder said:

"These physical accidents (heart attacks) come out of nowhere and he certainly has no guarantee that in trying this thing again he won't have another (attack)."

"All he can do is trust in God if he decides—if he goes ahead—but it would be the same for any new man who has never had a heart attack. Even many young men have heart attacks without warning and die."

Standing not far from the President's hunting wagon as it headed through a field of pine trees, Snyder added that the President "might be safer than before" because he has learned to slow down and guard his physical condition more carefully.

Snyder seemed pleased with the results of the President's comparatively strenuous exercise during the 10 days he has been at the Humphrey plantation. He said the President was in "very good shape" and "hasn't been fatigued at all."

The chief executive was scheduled to fly back to the nation's capital Saturday morning, reaching the White House in the early afternoon.

Soil Payments In Grain Urged

Hickenlooper Offers Amendment To Farm Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper proposed today that corn farmers be given a fat bonus for taking soil bank payments in surplus grain.

The Iowa Republican offered his plan as an amendment to the omnibus farm bill which the Senate debated for the third straight day. A vote on the measure was not expected before next week or later.

The farm aid bill calls for a 1,000,000,000 "soil bank" and rigid 90 per cent price supports on corn, cotton, peanuts and milable wheat. It also calls for a two-price plan for rice and higher supports for dairy products.

Denies Farmers "on Rocks"

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson told a national television audience Thursday night farmers are "not on the rocks" or "depression-bound."

But Benson said the nation's huge crop surpluses are "smothering farm prices and income." Hickenlooper's amendment would leave flexible price supports on corn, but would give farmers a two-way premium if they took payment "in kind," instead of cash, for shifting allotted corn acreage to a conservation crop.

First, they would receive $1.15 worth of surplus corn for each $1 of the certificate they had received as a soil bank payment. Soil bank payments would be based on the support price. Second, they would get the corn at the market price which has been low-

Thinking It Over—For Lent

By Robt. Dieffenbacher, D. D. Written for NEA Service

This pushbutton world in which we now live has become so simple—

We touch a switch, and light appears in abundance. We push another button and motors hum. We make a series of contacts, and complicated computations automatically come out of a machine. We turn a dial, and talk instantly to some remote person thousands of miles away.

But—

We cannot touch a button and create life. We cannot restore life to the deceased with the throwing of a switch. Nor can we stall the forces of nature with the use of electric or atomic energy. We cannot change hate to love with machinery.

Man, with all his discoveries, inventions and advances, is still a lot lower than the Supreme Being Who created man and all the creatures in the world.

Whenever we begin to brag about our mastery of some sector of life, we are brought back to reality with the knowledge that we have a long way to go before we can attain even a small bit of perfection.

There is no man-made substitute for God and love and hope. Let us pray not for more man-made energy but for more of the presence of God.

er than the support price.

The farmer would have to use the corn himself either for livestock feed or seed.

There was substantial opposition to the proposal, particularly from wheat and cotton belt senators.

Paul Powell's Record as a Legislator:

Paul Powell has always based his campaigns on the slogan:
"His Record as a Legislator is Your Guarantee."

Here is Paul Powell's record, as compiled by the Illinois Legislative Council:

Only Sponsor of Bills	165
Co-Sponsor of Bills	512
TOTAL	677
Passed the House	384
Failed in the House	293
Passed the Senate	323
Failed in the Senate	61
BECAME A LAW	290

In summarizing Rep. Powell's legislative record, the Legislative Council made the following comments to Mr. Powell on February 6, 1956:

The bills successfully sponsored by you, which probably are most newsworthy include:

- 1—Reapportionment of the state as directed by the constitutional amendment. (Mr. Powell opposed reapportionment, but voted for a measure providing that the voters decide the issue. He fought for defeat of the proposition at the polls, but it carried, and he thereafter worked for an equitable reapportionment arrangement).
- 2—Improvements in the Agricultural Premium Fund and creation of the Fair and Exposition Fund.
- 3—Strengthening the position of Southern Illinois University.
- 4—A variety of improvements in the ordinary operation of the state government.
- 5—Continued interest in state support for the public schools.
- 6—Inauguration of a program of Federal-State aid for the permanently disabled.

ADDITIONAL COMMENTS

Business and Labor

Many of the bills you have sponsored reflected more than usual attention to the economic health of the state, particularly southern Illinois. Your bills reflect a considerable amount of attention for the coal mining industry and coal miners of the state.

Public Health and Welfare

One of the fields of legislation that received more than usual attention in the form of sponsored legislation was that of health and welfare. Here your major emphasis was upon the introduction of legislation seeking to ease the lot of the oldsters of the state.

For example, there was a continuing attempt to raise old age pensions, to repeal legislation which authorized the state to seek recovery from the estate of recipients, and to increase the number of oldsters entitled to receive old age pensions.

Education

We find that you have sponsored many bills having to do with the public school system and each of these, of course, is important. As far back as 1943 your House Bill 268 provided for financing school lunch programs partially from state funds. While this bill did not pass, the program has, of course, been instituted.

The level of state aid to schools and the basis used for apportioning the amount available among the various schools have been the subject of numerous bills that you sponsored or co-sponsored.

Your support of higher education has centered, of course, around Southern Illinois University.

Agriculture and Conservation

Indication of the interest shown by you in agriculture may be found in a number of proposals seeking to improve the agriculture aspects of the State and especially that of southern Illinois.

Motor Vehicles and Roads

An ever increasing problem in state government, especially since the end of World War II has been that of providing better roads and better control and regulation of motor vehicles using these roads. You have been interested in this legislation.

State and Local Government

Many persons would perhaps consider that some of the most important legislation you have sponsored relates to the organization of state government and its day-to-day functioning.

Some Other Measures

The bills you have sponsored cover many other subjects.

Just a Corpse at Twilight

By Robert Martin

THE STORY: James Bennett, private investigator, found the dead body of a widow, Mrs. Alice Osborn. Bennett had been trying to learn if Mrs. Osborn's late husband Frank had died from industrial causes. Prior to discovering the body, someone took a shot at Bennett. Sheriff Abner Cornwallis, who believed the bullets were strays from guns of young hunters, now can't find a youth who was hunting with a .22 near the Osborn home at the time of the shootings.

XVI

I said, "I'd better get back to town. Are you going to the funeral?"

"I figure on it." He drained his glass.

"Maybe we can go together," I suggested.

He placed his glass carefully on the table and his little bloodshot eyes peered at me. "You got a sort of feeling for Alice Osborn? Is that why you want to pay your respects?"

"I don't know," I said slowly, realizing that I really didn't know. "I'm interested in her husband's case, and I was the one who found her..." My voice trailed off.

His head nodded up and down. "A nice kind of go you got you, I mean—just looking at her. She got you, didn't she, even if she was dead?"

"She was attractive."

If I was 20 years younger, I'd have given Doc Jarrett and Wilbur Tweed a run for Alice. She was my kind of woman, friendly and easy-going, good-looking, but not too good-looking, and smart, too.

He fingered his empty glass and scowled at me, his heavy black brows joining over the bridge of his thin blade of a nose, and said abruptly, "You don't figure on doing that autopsy on Frank, do you, now that Alice is gone?"

I was getting a little weary of the question. "Certainly. Why not?"

"Doc Jarrett won't allow it. He told me so, and he's the coroner. And Wilbur Tweed talked to me about it, and he said he won't let you use his place to do it in. And you can't get Alice's permission, now that she's dead. Where does that leave you? Out in the cold, if you ask me."

I remembered suddenly that I hadn't mailed Alice Osborn's signed release to Austin O'Connor, and I tapped the right side of my coat. "I've got Mrs. Osborn's permission in writing to do the post mortem on her husband." Almost before I spoke, I knew it was a mistake.

"Oh, is that so?" he said softly. "Fast work, huh? When, may I ask, did Alice give it to you?"

"She mailed it," I lied.

"That so? Yesterday, out at her place, you told me you went there to see her about it, and you found her dead. How could she mail it?"

"I talked to her on the phone on Friday. I mailed the form to her and she signed it and sent it back to me." I was making it worse, I thought; he had trapped me.

"How?" he asked, hunching forward. "How could Alice do that? If you mailed it to her last evening, when I saw you at the post office, she wouldn't get it until this morning, and if she signed it and mailed it right back you would never have it until Monday, or maybe tomorrow, if your hotel picks up its mail. But you didn't get it today, not in the mail."

"All right," I said, grinning at him, "if you want to get technical. I mailed her the form last night. She got it this morning, before she was killed, signed it and put it in an envelope stamped and sealed and addressed to me. I found it by the phone, all ready to mail."

"That's better," he said with grim satisfaction. "Don't try to get cagey with me, son. I been around a long time. So you just took it, huh?"

"It was addressed to me."

"But it was still in her house. The property of a dead woman. The law decides who gets what in a case like that."

"What difference does it make?" His head was still weaving, but his little bloodshot eyes never left my face. "Maybe no difference, maybe a lot." He hunched a little farther forward. "What if Alice's sister out in Fort Wayne is next of kin and she decides she don't want her brother-in-law dug up and messed with?"

"Sheriff," I said, "that's pretty far-fetched, and you know it has nothing to do with this. Why are you worrying about it?"

"I'm not worrying about it. I'm just trying to do my duty. I looked up Alice's house and put a seal on the doors. I'm responsible for the house and what's in it until the will is probated, if Alice had a will." He held out a hand. "Give me that paper."

I had unpleasant visions of Austin O'Connor's shrill outrage if I turned over Alice Osborn's autopsy permission to a village sheriff.

"No," I said. "I'm sorry."

"I'm the law here, son," he said gently. "I'm not wearing my gun, but I can force you to turn that paper over. I can deputize Roy, there, to help me, if I need him."

"Sheriff," I said, sincerely, "you've had a hard day. Maybe you'd better go to bed."

"Give me that paper."

I began to feel mean, too. Sometimes I go along for months, happy with everybody, a friend to all the world. And then comes a slow build-up of irritations, and accumulation of little prodding things, and then I'm through being polite or kind or even fair. I stood up and I said, "Try and get it."

His crafty old eyes shifted and there was a sudden sour look around his mouth, and I saw him glance furtively at the hefty young bartender.

"Go ahead," I invited. "Deputize Roy."

Laura C. Colp of Carlerville Seeks GOP Nomination for Representative

Laura C. Colp

Laura C. Colp of Carlerville today formally announced her candidacy for state representative from the 59th Representative district, subject to the Republican primary April 10.

Mrs. Colp was born in Carlerville, Williamson county, and has lived there all her life, attending grade and high school there before entering Southern Illinois university and Valparaiso university.

Preceding her marriage to Logan N. Colp, a farmer and fruit-grower, she taught in the Carlerville city schools. The Colps have lived on and operated the same farm a mile and a half west of Carlerville ever since their marriage. They have one son and one daughter, both married, and five little granddaughters.

Despite a heavy schedule both on the farm and around her home, Mrs. Colp for many years has been active in her church and in many civic organizations. She has held many offices in the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, having been president of the Carlerville club, vice president of the Southern regions, state chairman, state recording secretary, and is the immediate past state first vice president.

Mrs. Colp feels that this experience in club work has given her a broad knowledge of the many problems which the legislature faces today.

A life-long Republican, Mrs. Colp has been increasingly active in Republican circles. She has served in the Williamson county official organization as precinct committeewoman and county chairwoman. In the Federation of Illinois Republican Women's clubs, Mrs. Colp has been state chairman of campaign activities and state recording secretary.

She feels that her varied service will fit her admirably for service in the legislature, that her knowledge of the resources and needs of the 59th district is detailed. She is interested in the solution of its problems.

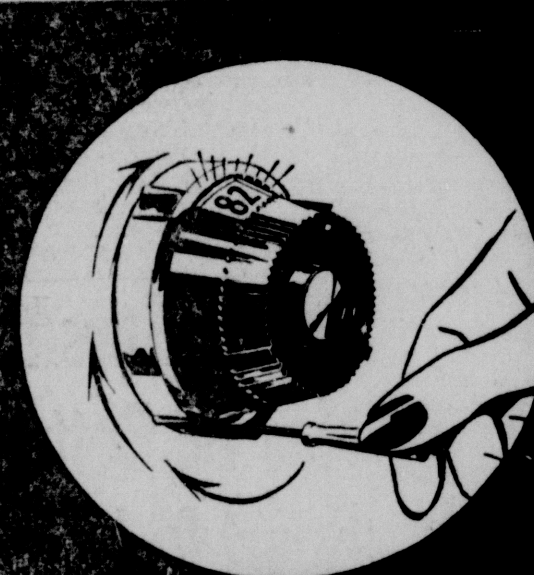

Great Britain imports one-half of its food supply and two-thirds of its raw materials.

Presently she is serving as 25th District congressional director and is a member of the state advisory board. Under her capable direction several new Republican Women's clubs have been organized and are functioning efficiently.

Mrs. Colp never has been a candidate for political office previously; neither has she had any patronage appointment. Her loyal service to the Republican party always has been as a volunteer.

She feels that her varied service will fit her admirably for service in the legislature, that her knowledge of the resources and needs of the 59th district is detailed. She is interested in the solution of its problems.
